

It was every executive's greatest relief....

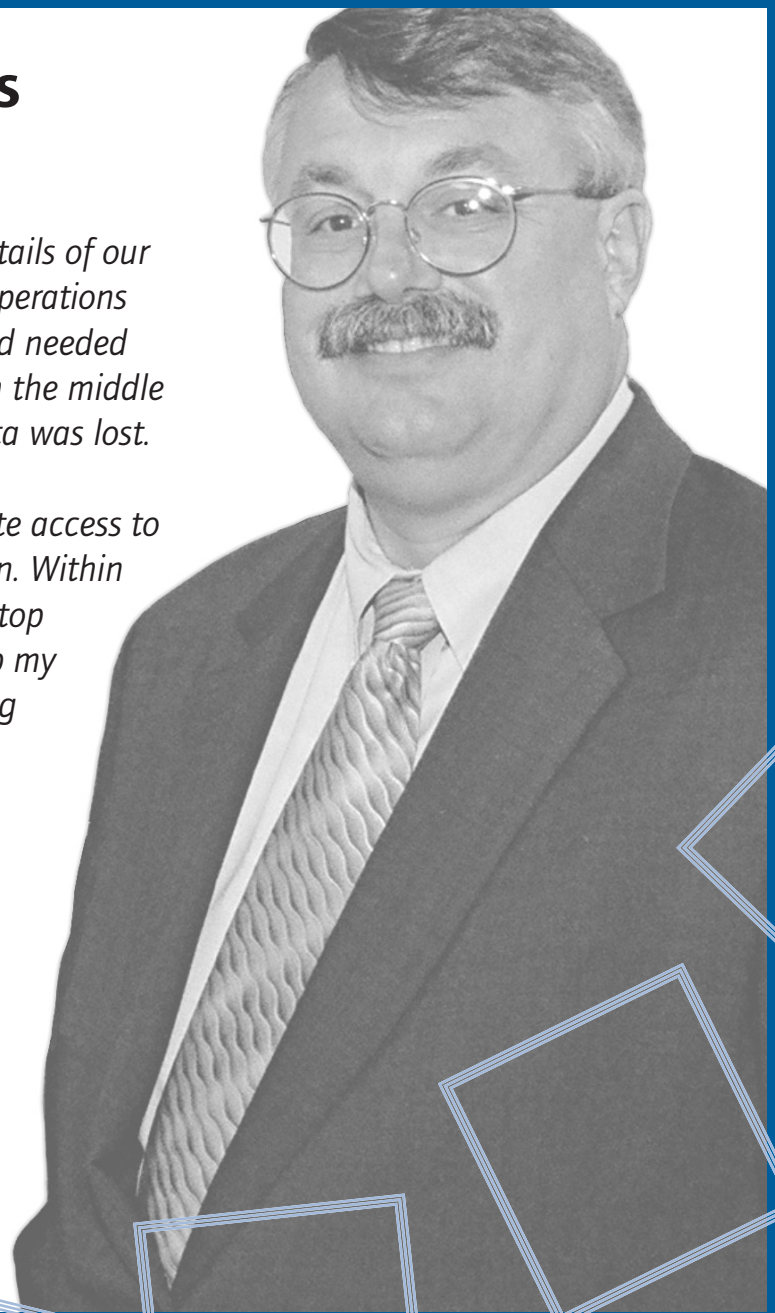

In March 2006, we were fine-tuning the details of our annual budget when a transformer blew. Operations were down, we were on a tight deadline and needed access to our files. With the loss of power in the middle of our updates, we were unsure of what data was lost.

As a Network Alliance client, reliable, remote access to a secure network is inherent in their solution. Within moments, I was able to connect to my desktop from a nearby location with power, open-up my document and found the cursor still blinking on the last key stroke I made.

Network Alliance saved our budget.
